No Band Concert

The local band will not give their regular Saturday night concert. This will no doubt be a disappointment to many who have enjoyed these concerts, but let's have a heart. The band has practiced every week and most weeks twice ever since they organized more than a year ago. Since May 13, the date of the first free band concert on Kearney streets, it has kept up two practice periods each week, played on our streets each Saturday night and made one trip for an all day engagement at Turney, Mo. July 4, and appeared several times at other gatherings. Members of the band plan to enjoy Saturday night listening to some other band instead of playing.

They probably will be back on the job "tootin'" for Kearney after one week's rest.

These concerts have meant much to Kearney as it has afforded the only amusement many have enjoyed in months and at the same time it has brought much business to Kearney that would otherwise have gone elsewhere.

Law and Order

Officers demonstrated that Law and Order still prevails in Kearney when they made an arrest Saturday night for drunkenness and disturbing the peace and that arrest was followed up by a jail sentence.

If men must get drunk, and it seems that they must, they should learn that others will not stand the unnecessary disturbance. We heartily applaud the successful efforts of our officers in enforcing the laws.

Since the above was set up another arrest and conviction has been obtained on a liquor charge.

All buildings on the fairgrounds are ready, concessions are in place and everything is in order to entertain

All attendance records have been shattered by A Century of Progress—the Chicago World's Fair. Here is a typical daily scene of crowds parading down the colorful Avenue of Flags—a scene in which visitors from all the world participate. Eighty-two miles of free exhibits are located in the Exposition.

Paragraphs

Gossip of a malicious nature is one of the lowest and most contemptible things anyone can indulge in yet most communities seem to be plagued at periodic intervals by this oldest of plagues. Lately Kearney, it seems, has broken out with an epidemic of malicious gossip and the disease is spreading so much that corrective measures may be necessary. A very good rule is to repeat nothing unless your are sure of its truth.

August 14th 66 tons of gold and silver, about 30 million dollars, earmarked for France and large private banks in England were shipped from New York by the Federal Reserve Bank on the Olympic. This is the largest single shipment made in recent months.

Not many days ago the U. S. Government borrowed through the sale of bonds $500,000,000.00. Since these bonds pay three and one-half percent interest and do not mature for 8 years the tax payers already overburdened will have to pay about $132,000,000.00 for the use of this money. There is little doubt since these bonds are tax free, this money could have been had at lower interest rate.

Recently John Thomas, living the river bottom near South and who is an uncle of Thomas of this city, shot and killed a prowler. The man had a mask and an old safety razor blade sharpener to look like a gun.

It it is a terrible thing to think of taking the life of a fellowman but when a man prowls about another's home at two o'clock in the morning with a mask on he is asking for just what this man got, a load of No. 4 shot from a No. 10 shot gun. If more people would keep a loaded shotgun handy and not be afraid to use it on prowlers, prowling and theft would not be so prevalent in Clay County.

The Actress Incognito

By H. IRVING KING

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
WNU Service

THERE was a touch of the theatrical about her as she passed with her swinging gait down the lobby of the hotel. Just a touch, not a loud pronouncement. It was a hotel on a Florida beach; a moderate-priced, retiring, restful sort of place, just suited to its patrons who came year after year.

Of course, every year there were a few new faces. This season the new faces were those of Rosalie Maltravers and Charles Burdick. Rosalie was the girl with the theatrical touch about her and Charles was the young man who sat watching her intently as she strode through the hotel lobby.

It was whispered that she was a celebrated actress down there incognito, just for rest.

As for Charles Burdick his manner and clothes were so perfect that it had been decided that he was a young man of "wealth and fashion."

On the third evening after the arrival of the perfectly equipped and perfectly mannered Mr. Burdick, he and the celebrated actress incognito sat on the veranda of the hotel looking out over the moonlit waters.

"Somehow, do you know, Miss Maltravers," said Charles, "your face seems familiar to me. Now where could I have seen you before?"

Rosalie gave a little gasp and replied, "Oh dear. It's no use for me to try and hide away—and just rest.

People will recognize me. I may as well admit that I am merely an actress, seeking quiet retirement in this delightful and obscure place to recover from the nervous strain caused by my exacting work."

"Acting must be hard work," replied Charles. "No wonder so many actors and actresses suffer from nervous breakdowns. May I go so far as to ask your stage name?"

"Ah," laughed Rosalie, "that I may not—or will not—tell you. It would be all over the hotel in half an hour and I should have no peace. And may I add that you yourself, Mr. Burdick, appear to be somewhat of a mystery according to the gossip of the hotel? Tell me your real name."

"Really," replied Charles, "I must have my secrets as well as yourself. I, too, seek peace and not publicity."

After that Charles and Rosalie were together so much that everybody at the resort considered the affair as settled. The millionaire was going to marry the actress. Wasn't it delightful?

Never, never had the guests at the little hotel enjoyed their sojourn there so much. They wrote off reams of letters to their friends in the North about it. The lovemaking of Rosalie and Charles progressed rapidly, but after that first talk of theirs they let the mystery of their real identities stand as it was—as if there was no mystery. Or was it that all other mysteries were swallowed up in the mystery of love? Sometimes Rosalie would have a moody spell; sit silent, evidently thinking deeply and letting Charles do all the talking.

One evening as they sat in the hotel garden, the moon shining on the sea and a gentle wind waving the Spanish mass upon the live oak trees, Rosalie after one of these fits of meditation said, "Charles, I am almost tempted to tell you my real name."

"You need not, dearest," replied Charles, "unless you want to. It makes no difference. It is you that I care about. You are all the world to me. You know it. Now, then, will you marry me?"

Rosalie turned her head aside and said softly, "What would your wealthy family say to your marrying an actress? In some quarters there is still prejudice against the stage, you know."

"Nonsense," answered Charles, "that sort of thing vanished long ago. Again I ask, will you marry me?"

"When I have told you who I am, if you still want me, I will," said she.

"Don't bother," replied Charles. "I know who you are. You are that demure little stenographer who works for Hayden and Blankford in the Magathum building and are down here taking a vacation, the first in years. I have often seen you in the elevator, or passed you in the hall, but you never would look at me until I chanced to run across you here."

"You horrid thing," sobbed Rosalie. "Why didn't you tell me you knew me at once and not let me make a fool of myself posing as an actress. But you needn't think yourself so smart. You are that young lawyer who has an office on the top floor and I have known you all along. But I didn't imagine that you knew me. And, oh, I always did so long to be an actress."

"You are a perfect actress, darling," replied Charles soothingly, "but, as you remarked when we first met down here, good acting is a great strain on the nervous system. What say, Miss Ruth Mathews—shall we go back to New York and get married? Business is pretty good with me; you won't have to work any more."

Of course, Ruth, alias Rosalie, eventually said yes. But at the same time she told Charles that she doubted if she ever could really forgive him for the way he had deceived her in Florida.
