To Organize

Tuesday hight, October 10, at a mass-meeting in Kearney, three members of the Clay County, the employment and Relief Committee were present and made many things, relative to the employment and relief situation in Clay County, clear to those present. One being that it is necessary for this community to organize in order to share in the distribution of State and National fund in this county.

At this meeting a committee was appointed to draft a plan for organizing this community. This committee after much consideration and consultation with various ones have drafted a plan which calls for such an organization to suppliment any work the County and other relief organizations are doing through the obtaining of employment for as many as possible and the giving of relief to those not able to work. Should this plan be adopted and the organization formed accordingly the supplementry re

All Unemployed Should Register

The unemployed of Clay County should register at once. Registration should be made with the Reemployment Office at Liberty, Excelsior Springs Chamber of Commerce, Mayor Chamber of Commerce, Mayor Shinn at Smithville, Shaw and Donovan Store at Missouri City, or Mayor Riley at Kearney.

In order for the county Reemployment committee to do the work as the Government authorities wish, it is necessary that all the unemployed register. The committee must know where the unemployed are located in order to place the men as work opens up.

Unless the unemployed register. The committee will have no way of locating them when the contractors call for men. No cards for work are issued by the office except on written orders from the contractors.

OLD TRUNKS HIDE "LATEST" FASHIONS

Now that the spirit of the 90s has returned in leg-o'-mutton sleeves, wideshouldered frocks and a return of some of that gay "fuss and feathers' spirit, it may be that a little rummaging among the family relics will be more than repaid.

Of course, most old clothes are dis. carded or given away, but the exceptions are always lovely things. The styles of the coming winter are going to be more formal, more graceful in some ways than they have been for years. Perhaps if you rummage through some of grandmother's packed away belongings (if she'll let you), you may be rewarded by finding some exquisite pearl embroidery, a priceless egret plume, or a bit of delicate valenclennes that will give distinction to your winter wardrobe.

New Ribbed Fabrics Are Favored in Winter Mode From present indications, ribbed inability, due to the selfishness of her family, to put finishing touches to her costume for a intry dance, Anne Chamberlain is irritated country dance, Anne Chamberlain is irritated by the stolidity of her escort, George Hildreth. A visitor in the community, Neal Conrad, young lawyer, is to be the "sensation" of the evening, and Hildreth, Anne's suitor, is vaguely jealous. Conrad is impressed by Anne's fresh young beauty and readily perceives her fine character. He invites her to accompany him and his hostess, Mrs. Griffin, and her son Roy, on a picnic the following Sunday. Anne Roy, on a picnic the following Sunday accepts, though aware she is being

The motoring party took place, not without violent opposition from more quarters than one. Neal broached the subject to his friend on the way home from the dance, and Roy objected to it with more vigor than Neal would have supposed him capable of displaying in regard to any subject. "You asked Anne Chamberlain to go up to the mountains with you! Good Heavens, Neal, you don't know anything about the girl at all! She comes from one of the most worthless families in the whole town."

"Well, she's come a long way, then. You don't call her worthless, do you?"

"No, I rather like Anne." "Good! I like her very much; and she's darned attractive.' "You must have seen plenty of goodlooking girls.'

"I have. And plenty of bright girls. And plenty of girls with lots of go to them. But I never saw one that combined all those qualities so thoroughly in one and the same person. I got her to tell me a little about herself. She said her father had had hard luck, and her mother wasn't strong." "Hard luck! the kind of hard luck that comes from never doing any hard work! His farm is going to rack and ruin, it's mortgaged, and he's head over heels in debt besides. As for Anne's mother being delicate—well, she weighs about three hundred and fifty pounds, and she may have heart disease or kidney trouble. I shouldn't be at all surprised. If Anne hadn't worked her fingers to the bone and taught school besides these last two years, I don't know how they'd have

"And you think a girl with that much spunk isn't worth knowing?" Roy stared at his friend with growing astonishment. Neal had not only been swiftly hit. He had been hit

"I didn't say that she wasn't worth knowing. But-why, she doesn't even know-how-to-dress!"

"She knows that she doesn't know. And that being the case, she'll learn. Give her time. She can't be much over twenty." 'She isn't quite that.'

"Then you just wait and see what she'll look like by the time she's thirty! You don't object if I at least ask your mother to go with us?"

"You can ask her. But I know she'll refuse." "Surely she wouldn't expect me to insult the girl by inviting her to go off

"Good Lord, Neal! You don't need to invite her at all.'

a friend of mine. You're not acting much like one." -Roy felt a pang of contrition. He was a gentle creature.

"I'm sorry, Neal. I shouldn't have spoken as I did. Anne's a nice girl, Every one admits that. I'd be as sorry as anyone to see her get into trouble.' "It's inconceivable that she should get into trouble," said Neal icily.

"Yes, of course. What I meant was -go ahead and ask Mother. / I'll say what I can to her, too."

"Thank you," said Neal, still coldly. Because of his repentant spirit, Roy said even more to his mother than he had intended. But in spite of this intercession, Neal found her adamant when he first approached her.

"I couldn't think of it. Neal. It would make talk, going on a Sunday." "It's the only day the poor girl can go. She works like a dog all the rest of the time." "And I don't know her at all. It wouldn't seem natural starting off that way with a stranger.' "Why, I should think you'd like to get acquainted with her. She and Roy

FARM GIRL CHAMP

Helen Goodhart, seventeen, milked, husked, churned and raked her way to fame when she won the American farm girl championship at the Los Angeles county fair in Pomona, Calif. Her dexterity in the hay raking, milking, butter churning, corn husking, tractor driving and other events of the championship contests gave her a high score of points that outstripped a large field of contenders for the title.

Non-Bobbing Barber

Ouits After 50 Years Boston.-Concord, capital of New Hampshire, has a barber whose resolution is as hard and enduring as the rock for which the Granite state is named. Retiring at the age of seventy-nine after a half century of work, he proudly boasts that never has he cut a woman's hair. Women have begged, threatened, argued and laughed, but no one could move his immutable determination

His reply, with numerous variations, has been, "What was good enough for God Almighty ought to be good enough for them. He put the hair on their heads as a crown ing glory. No bobs or shingles ever will be executed in this shop."

In construction of their roads, the ancient engineers began by digging down to hardpan, which is near the surface, and erecting retaining walls on each side to the height to which they desired to bring the road.

These walls were built of large, roughly faced limestone set in mortar. Into the space between the walls a layer of heavy boulders, some of them two or three feet in length and weighing many hundreds of pounds, were carefully laid and the spaces between

After this was hammered or rolled into a hard, level surface, a final coating of mortar cement was applied.

This cement was made of lime mixed with finely sifted white earth, called sascab, which, originally, under the tropical sun, must have given the roads a dazzling appearance, quite as dazzling, perhaps, as the great "white ways" of our own cities.

Yellowstone Park Has

Greatest Animal Show Yellowstone Park, Wyo .- The "greatest wild animal show in a natural setting" is the claim made by Yellowstone Park officials for the nightly parade of 50 Rocky mountain grizzly bears in Yellowstone canon. The giant silver tips, bringing wives, cubs and yearlings, make a prompt appearance each evening soon after food remnants from the canon hotel and lodge have been placed on a concrete feeding platform. Visitors, protected by a high steel wire fence and an alert ranger armed with a high powered rifle, may watch the grizzlies from the time they start down from surrounding hills until they leave for their homes once more.

Mothers with one, two or three cubs meander in, keeping close watch over the youngsters. Yearlings hungrily snatch morsels overlooked by the male rulers of the tribe, who in turn eat warily as they watch rivals. The sight is without parallel anywhere else in the world, park officials say.

Pharmacologist Finds Drug That Will Reduce

Palo Alto, Calif.—A drug which will make persons thin without the necessity of exercise has been found by research pharmacologists in the Stanford medical laboratories here.

It operates by producing a high fever in the patient, thereby consuming energy and tissue beyond the normal rate.

A preliminary report on this new drug has been published in the Journal of the American Medical Association by Dr. W. C. Cutting and M. L. Thaver

Small doses administered daily have reduced the weight of fat persons two pounds a week over a period of several months without diet changes or unnormal exercise.

School in Pennsylvania Serves Four Counties

Harrisburg, Pa.—Pennsylvania has a high school that serves four counties. The school, located in Fannett township, in the northern part of Franklin county, has an enrollment of about 70 pupils, one of whom last year drove the family car 20 miles one way over mountain roads to attend classes daily. Other counties served by the school are Huntingdon, Juniata, and Perry. The department of public instruction reported that there were at least 40 additional boys and girls living within a radius of 20 miles of the school, who wanted to attend, but could not because their parents were unable to provide transportation.

Why the Sudden Change to Liquid Laxatives?

Doctors have always recognized the value of the laxative whose dose can be measured, and whose action can be controlled. The public, too, is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that a properly pre-pared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be. regulated. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescription, and is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna —a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is at all druggists. Member N. R. A.

Unwise to Break Faith With Child

Promises and rewards are two closely allied measures made use of by parents to stimulate and encourage their children in good conduct and in their schooling or chosen work during undergraduate days. Used wisely, they are potent factors in securing the desired ends and reactions. It sometimes happens, however, that promises are forgotten. The child either may not get what the has worked to attain because the promise may have been given so long before its object was attained, that it has slipped the memory of the parent although it has remained a vivid factor in the child's application and endeavors. Not only is a child discouraged by such forgetfulness, but worse than this, he loses faith in his parent. He (or she) does not keep his word.

The child may make a fuss about dt. If so the parent often gets annoyed and states that now, anyway, the child cannot get the rewardwhatever it was, for it is forfeit by the behavior. In reality the child has justice on his side, for a forgotten promise is none the less binding when once it has been made, even though memory has grown dim. If. the child is silent, the lasting effect of loss of faith in a parent's word is even worse. The child can be promised anything thereafter and it will fall on unheeding and disbelieving ears. Not only is the parent's word discounted, but the word of all persons, since parents typify the best, to their offspring.

Attaining an unearned reward is another danger to be shunned. When parents make promises dependent upon some special action or attainments and then give the award without regard to success of the child in whatever it is offered for, the parents lose their grip on the child.

Reciprocity is absolutely essential when there are promises of awards. The child must be kept faith with. The promise must be remembered. It cannot be so lightly given or regarded that it becomes inconsequential to the person making it. Parents must beware of how they make promises, but having made them, they must stand. So essential is this that no reward should be given unless it has been earned. The success of a child in later years may rest on his ability to fullfil conditions in his youth. He gets to be a spoiled child, otherwise, and one who has little respect for laws when he is an adult. C. 1933, Bell Syndicate.-WNU Service.

GET PULLETS INTO WINTER QUARTERS

Birds' Comfort.

Now is the time to make final preparations for the winter egg supply. It should be remembered, says a writer in the Missouri Farmer, that the great bulk of winter eggs come from pullets hatched last spring—assuming they were hatched early enough so that they are now practically mature -so while the older hens should not be neglected the poultryman should pay special attention to the pullets. Every effort should be exerted to bring them into laying at earliest opportunity. One of the important things to do is to get them into winter quarters. The chief reason for this is that if laying while on the range, these laying pullets are very apt to suffer a set-back when transferred to permanent quarters. Frequently this set-back is so serious that it precipitates a fall molt and the pullets may experience a winter or early fall molt just at the time when eggs are higher in price. One of the problems of the poultryman is to avoid this fall vacation and early housing will tend to reduce the danger of this trouble. The usual recommendation is to house the pullets when as many as 5 per cent of the flock are laying, but generally speaking from now on the earlier the pullets are housed the better. By early housing the pullets become adjusted to their new quarters before starting in on their year of production and in addition they will probably be less susceptible to fall colds which always cut down produc-

In the housing of pullets emphasis should be placed in the preparation of the winter quarters. First of all plans should be made to house the pullets in separate houses or pens as pullets fail to make satisfactory development if mixed with older hens. The presence of older hens not only exposes the pullets to diseases to which the hens may have become immune and yet may be able to transmit to the pullets in which immunity has not been established. Then, too, there is always the danger of the pullets becoming infested with external parasites. Again the presence of old in frequenting the feed hoppers and ten thousand octillions of dollars, consequently with limited feed con- You write that figure by butting a sumption growth and maturity are re-to Stave Off Fowl Pox Fowl pox of chickens is a disease that affects the poultryman's pocketbook, for infected birds lay few eggs, and if the chicken's mouth and eyes are infected, the bird may die, according to Dr. C. C. Ellis of the New York state college of veterinary medicine. When pullets recover from fowl pox, as many do. they are immune from further attack.

Doctor, Ellis says vaccination is desirable where flocks had fowl pox last year; vaccination is probably not desirable if the flock has never suffered an attack of fowl pox; but to be certain to avoid the disease this fall and winter, he suggests vaccinaton as a preventive measure. It is advisable to vaccinate while the birds are still on range. Flocks that are affected with coccidiosis, worms, or any other diseased condition will likely suffer some losses. The vaccine is applied by first removing several feathers from the front part of one leg and then applying the vaccine with a small brush.

Capacity of the Hen

Until 20 years ago plain poultry keepers and scientists alike held the view that every hen came into the world with the possible number of eggs she might lay in her lifetime definitely fixed. No one knows who first promulgated this idea, or what reason he gave for it. Some way it got into circulation and was everywhere accepted without question. The utmost capacity of a hen was believed to be not more than 700 to 800.

POULTRY HELPS

Plowing up the ground helps to rid the soil of disease germs and intestinal worms.

Vitamin G is deficient in some poulry rations and such deficiency causes low hatchability of the eggs produced.

An extra quantity of green feed, such as chopped green alfalfa or Jersey kale, will darken the color of yolks of eggs and improve their quality. Rigid culling throughout the growing season cuts the cost of raising chicks and lowers the mortality among Chopped alfalfa hay and skimmed milk are potent sources of vitamin G and their inclusion in a ration for laying hens is recommended. Three varieties of the Guinea fowl are known in America, the pearl, the white, and a patchy mixture of pearl and white. In Italy, it is said, there are some twelve color varieties.

New Bonds for Old Too Many Strikes Suppose They Earn It? 10,000 Octillions

The United States calls in old bonds, puts out new ones. It will sell for cash $500,000,000 worth of the Time to Prepare for Young | new bonds. The result will be loading on the backs of taxpayers an annual interest charge that would soon pay off the bonds. The government could have paid off those bonds and could pay off all other bonds now outstanding, with new money signed by the government, that would have been exactly as good as the bonds themselves. If that were done $20,000,000,000 would be put into circulation and prosperity would return.

General Johnson, boss of NRA, says strikes may doom labor and the NRA, that they are not needed under the President's mediation machinery. NRA may have to veto even the decisions of labor unions when industry and

"40,000,000 workers are organized." Mr. Grady, assistant secretary of labor, threatens to ask congress for power to settle all strikes involving federal work, thus opening the way to government control of unions.

If, as General Johnson suggests, 40,000,000 workers in the United States are to be unionized, this question will have to be settled, which is the most powerful union in the United States, the labor union or the Union of 48 states?

NRA thinks child movie stars are paid "more than they should be paid," and is distressed about "directors receiving five or six times the salary of the President." The directors will quote Johnson: "Comparisons are odious," and suggest, reasonably, that the question is not how much they get, but whether they earn what they

If one mining engineer can tell you where to find gold, and another only tells you where you can find nothing, you would rather have the former, even at a higher salary. You might even divide the gold with him "50-50." That's all there is to the "too big salary" question.

That is interesting, not important. On the other hand, and most important, General Johnson tells you that if you take one dollar now, spend it, and put it in circulation, you are helping a recovery that may not amount to ten thousand octillions, but will surely amount to many billions of American dollars every year.

The doctors, gathered in Chicago, mention 15,608 recent new cures of cancer, making a total of 24,448 cases known to have been cured.

Gen. R. E. Wood, president of Sears-Roebuck, who proved, working for the government on the Panama canal after he came from West Point, that he knows about business and industry, says there is no doubt that conditions are improving and "pointing upward." His report, coming from innumerable cities and from the world's biggest mail order enterprise, shows steady gains. General Wood, like everybody else, thinks that "something must be done about money."

Miss Perkins, secretary of labor, informs government "conciliators" that "you have no right to tell any editor what he may or may not print in his news or editorial column." Miss Perkins seems to have read the Constitution. She ought to read it to some of the others.

In the news comes gruesome items from Shanghai shedding light on our "civilization."

Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek hurriedly is rushing to Kiangsi Province 10,000 hospital beds to be ready to handle the wounded.

Women spend 85 per cent of the household money, according to General Johnson, and he appeals especially to them to support the "Buy Now" campaign, and thus "help to keep the wage earner on a payroll." It is a good idea to add "Buy American" to your "Buy Now" program. Unless you buy goods made in America you are spending money to keep some foreigner on a payroll.

The government finds that when prohibition goes and "it will not be long now"-this country will have 40,000,000 gallons of whisky ready for immediate sale. That ought to last a little while.
